Daniel Sagath moderator and panelist at GLOBSEC 2016 conference
ABRI PhD candidate Daniel Sagath has been invited as a moderator and panelist at the GLOBSEC Global Security Forum Conference 2016, which will take place in Bratislava, Slovakia, on April 15-17.

The GLOBSEC conference, organized under the auspices of the Slovak government and other partnering countries, belongs to the top high-level forum security and policy conferences in Europe. It annually hosts presidents, prime ministers, experts and other professional activists from all over the world to discuss current security and policy topics of the utmost importance and its conclusions are seriously considered for the further global foreign, security and policy strategies.

For the first time in the history of the conference, there will be a special discussion panel called “GLOBSEC City talks” on Space policy and exploration connecting top level experts from the European Space Agency or the United Nations with broader public.

Daniel Sagath has been invited as the moderator and panelists of this panel, as the exceptional young Slovak expert on this topic with support of the Slovak Atlantic Commission and the Slovak Space Policy Association.

For this reason, on March 30 he has been invited for an interview for the Slovak Press Agency (TASR) to introduce his work and experience on space policy, economy and business development and to discuss the current global situation, role of Europe and small and relatively new countries in space such as Slovakia.

Other panelist of these year’s conference include the presidents of Slovakia, Croatia, Bulgaria and Macedonia, the prime minister of the Czech Republic, ministers of foreign affairs and other high-profile speakers, such as Madeleine Albright and Ursula von der Leyen.

Daniel Sagath appointed Head of Slovak delegation to UN Committee on the Peaceful Uses of Outer Space (COPUOS)
ABRI PhD candidate Daniel Sagath has recently been appointed as the Head of the Slovak delegation to the United Nations’ Committee on the Peaceful Uses of Outer Space (COPUOS) Legal Subcommittee. Since 1959, COPUOS is the UN’s main global legal and regulatory advisory body for space activities, and acts as the advisory committee for the UN General Assembly for civil and non-military use of outer space. COPUOS has been responsible for the preparation of all main general rules on the use of outer space, also known as the UN Space treaties. With its legal and scientific subcommittees annually discuss the current and long term issues and trends on human space exploration and use of the outer space. Today COPUOS consists of 77 Member states of the UN and its importance and interest to be a member of it constantly increases.
