MESSAGE FROM THE ABRI TEAM

Dear ABRI colleagues and business relations,

We hope that you all had a wonderful and inspiring summer, and we wish you an equally great and inspiring new academic year full of creativity and success!

The start of the new academic year is always a special moment, and a good occasion to look ahead to the new courses, projects, research seminars, open lectures and other great events that ABRI will facilitate during the coming year. You will be updated about them through this newsletter and the ABRI website, www.abri.vu.nl. You can find the locations and dates of the courses here.

We look forward to working with the many new researchers across all Business Administration tracks, and to welcoming new ABRI Visiting Professors, a new group of part-time and fulltime PhD students and a new cohort of excellent students in the joint VU-UvA Research Master's Business in Society.

In case you would like to share news about your research, an event, or other interesting subjects with our research community, you are most welcome to submit your item to Hans Quené (h.quene@vu.nl). We will be happy to include it in the ABRI WE and the news page on the ABRI website!

Proudly announcing the faculty’s new name: Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam School of Business and Economics
As of the first of September, the Faculty of Economics and Business Administration (FEWEB) changes its name to the School of Business and Economics (SBE).

The name change is part of the School’s strategy and is in line with the ambitions regarding internationalisation. In a world where business, society and environment are closely related and interact at an increasingly global scale, SBE continues to expand its scope. SBE will further increase the range of English-taught study programmes, work on obtaining the AACSB accreditations in Business and in Accounting, intensify cooperation with the private sector and improve the exchange of knowledge with partner universities.

Jos Akkermans wins Outstanding Reviewer Award
Jos Akkermans was awarded an Outstanding Reviewer award during the Academy of Management conference 2017 in Atlanta, Georgia, USA. It has been the third year in a row that he has been awarded this prize of the Career Division of the AOM.

More than just enhancing international recognition, SBE reflects the broad scope of our activities and the quality of our teaching and research.

“We are very excited to move forward in our transformation into a truly international School and remain united in our commitment to excellence.”
- Willem Verschoor, Dean

The School of Business and Economics will celebrate its new name with a seminar entitled ‘Building a Bright Future’ on 21 November.

Major topics include: individual career development; career management strategies; career planning; relationships between human resource systems and careers; life cycle interactions with work; race, culture, and gender effects on careers; labor force diversity; internal labor market structures and functions; cross-cultural careers; and effects of demographic and social changes on work.

Although we started off with 12 students on paper, 3 of them withdrew after all, and from the others that have actually started, 3 are internationals (Hong Kong, US, and Vietnam). Our efforts to recruit have also proved successful in showing an even distribution of men and women. They were accepted from a larger pool of applicants, based on high quality of their profiles. They will soon introduce themselves in the ABRI We. Please engage them in our seminars and think how you would like to work with them and contact Maura Soekijad, director of doctoral education.
