Master’s in Marketing teachers in top 3 of Elsevier magazine’s best teachers ranking
The teachers of the Master’s in Marketing at VU Amsterdam have been named among the best teachers in the Netherlands by students in the category for large master’s and research master’s programmes. This is from Elsevier magazine’s ‘Best studies 2017’ publication.

The ‘Best teachers’ ranking is new this year and is based on students' evaluations of their teachers in the National Student Survey. In this survey, they assessed their teachers on competence, commitment, accessibility and guidance. Personal attention, availability outside of scheduled hours, and getting to know the students are characteristics of ‘good’ teachers, according to the study.

Elsevier magazine’s ‘Best studies 2017’
Especially for secondary school students who will choose a bachelor's degree in the next year and bachelor's students are looking for a suitable master's programme, Elsevier magazine compares 2,126 higher education programmes in the Netherlands. Where are students most satisfied with the facilities, education and organization? The ranking is based on the magazine’s own evaluation of the results from the National Student Survey, which involves more than 280,000 students.
